Tim, Thank you as always for your continued support. I was thinking about the possible Ribault ship which may have been found. I would think with it being a troop (war) ship, that an agreement with France might be necessary before trying to recover it. And if an agreement was needed and also reached with France, that a group of archeologists would be the best choice to recover it. And they would probably need financing. I tried to give money to Chuck Meade at LAMP for the purpose of finding the ships, but he was told to give it back to me. There were no strings attached, but he was still instructed to send my check back, which he did. We could utilize a not-for-profit foundation called The National Foundation for Marine Sciences. We could have the Foundation start a fund for the purpose of handling the cost of the recovery and conservation with a professional group. I would think the Governor would be pleased to hear it is handled professionally and at no cost to the State and France would be happy to hear the same and the FBAR would look good too. I am not asking for any part of it because I know how important this find would be to the State. Anyway, I am just trying to create options which would be good for everyone. And the group that found it would of course get credit for finding it. I don't think they would get anything anyway since it's a war ship. I know this is not directly my business, so I only offer food for thought. If I can be of help on this matter or any other, please let me know. Thanks, Kyle
